THEY THINK IT IS THE DEVIL.—There are half a dozen people who live at Bath Beach or Greenvale Beach, L. I., who are sure they have seen the devil. A monster all covered with hair, with flaming red whiskers and a Satanic howl, has swooped down upon them at night and nearly driven them into hysterics. As a result the women folk are in a great state of trepidation. They are afraid to stir out at night, and a great many men stay at home in preference to going visiting, as has been their custom. Young John Kelly, who was employed at the railroad, met the monster near the Unionville depot and became so frightened that he has refused to work ever since.
William Bell, the night train dispatcher, says the terrific apparition appeared alongside of him while he was working about an engine early Sunday morning last. The visitor, he says, gave a roar like thunder, grinned in a most ghastly manner and then started off. Bell says he doesn't believe in ghosts, and having a monkey wrench in his hand he went after the visitor. He chased the monster about two miles, he says, and then it disappeared so suddenly that it made Bell gasp. Twice the strange looking object stopped, as if to show fight. Saloon keeper Robert Eals, Jr., Thomas Perkins and others also declare that they have seen the thing. In telligent people believe some would-be joker has rigged himself up in a bear skin, a false face, &c., for the purpose of frightening the residents. However that may be the men are now carrying revolvers.

BROUGHT SHAME TO TWO HOMES.—Miss Mattie Stipp, a beautiful woman twenty-seven years old, went from Princeton, Ill., two years ago and entered the office of Auditor Hollis, a prominent republican of Tacoma, Washington. Auditor Hollis and Miss Stipp became more than friendly, and when Mrs. Hollis heard of it she was heartbroken, while her daughter was bowed down with the disgrace. Judge Stipp, the young woman's father, was on the bench at Princeton. When he heard of the affair a short time ago he became insane and is now in the insane asylum at Kankakee, Ill. Miss Stipp heard of her father's insanity last Sunday morning, and for the first time became aware that her relations with Hollis were known. Seized with a sudden frenzy while in Hollis' office, she took a revolver from a drawer and would have shot herself had not Hollis wrested the weapon from her. Then she went raving mad, and is now confined in the house of Dr. Almira Davenport, who is taking care of her. Hollis' resignation has been demanded by his party, and will be forthcoming. He has asked the pastor of the First Methodist Church, of which church he is a member, for a letter of withdrawal. His wife still clings to him and refuses to get a divorce. Miss Stipp constantly paces her room with staring eyes, crying for deliverance. Her friends will take her home to Illinois.

TWO BEARS WITH ONE GUN.—The great hunting region back from Shobola Glen, Pa., the Erie Railroad Company's principal excursion resort, is rife with the prowess of Will Schoonover, a sixteen-year-old boy, in killing two bears single handed with his little gun. In passing through a large swamp thickly grown with underbrush, he came abruptly upon the winter lair of a family of bears, two big sized old ones and two half grown cubs. The disturbed bears rose to their feet and growled viciously, while the dog stopped at a safe distance and barked furiously. Presently the male bear turned tail and made off into the deeper recesses of the swamp, followed by one of the cubs. But the mother bear showed fight in defiance of her cubs and made a savage rush upon the boy and the yelling hound at his feet. The plucky young hunter coolly waited until the savage brute was almost upon them, when he fired a load of buckshot square into the brain of the bear, killing it outright. The cub remained near the carcass of its dead mother, snarling savagely at the dog, until the boy had an opportunity to reload his gun and dispatch it. On the boy's return home several hunters started out in chase of the male bear and cub. They overtook and killed the young one, but the old one made good its escape.
